Eternal life isn't science fiction

The universe has 3000's of intelligently designed planets spread throughout galaxies.

They were built with a super computer wrapped in magnets, then these planet seeds were flown through asteroid belts. Then after building enough mass the magnets turn on induction heating and melt everything to magma. Once it cools intergalactic farmers seed it with water and life.

These planets are at various stages of development, technologically, spiritually, economically, evolutionarily.

Intergalactic planetary migration is available for a fee. The emigrator converts and liquidates assets to United States Dollar. There is a $100 million dollar tax taken off the top paid to the Israeli Government. The remainder of the USD is converted to local Planet Dollar.

These available planets are too far to see each other and conventional travel is impossible.

The emigrant is placed into an immortality pod on their home planet and their consciousness links to their new body on the chosen planet. They can always choose to return.
